Press Release

Jamaica Post restores postal service to 57 rural communities

A multi-million dollar Mobile Post Office was today officially launched in Steer Town, St. Ann. The Mobile Post Office will serve fifty-seven (57) communities and adjoining districts whose Post Office buildings have been closed because of poor infrastructural conditions and their operations relocated to other Post Offices.

The new modality of postal service is one of several pillars on which the modernization of Jamaica's Postal System is built and is expected to help with cost savings in the postal service. It is also expected to make it easier for residents to access postal service.

The Mobile Post Office will serve residents based on a schedule and will be stationed for a few hours in the communities in which defunct Post Offices currently exist. Some of the services to be offered by the Mobile Post Office are the collection and delivery of ordinary mail, registered letters, parcels and sale of stamps.
