Jamaica Post is pleased to announce its sponsorship of the 2025 Jamaica Cultural Development Commission (JCDC) Miss Kingston & St. Andrew Festival Queen competition, where Miss Makaylia Shakespeare has been sashed as Miss Jamaica Post.

This longstanding pageant, which began in 1963, has been an integral part of the island's calendar of events leading up to the Emancipation and Independence Day celebrations, serving as a significant cultural showcase. As Jamaica Post continues to evolve and enhance its services, we are proud to align our brand with this esteemed initiative, strengthening our commitment to national development while remaining the preferred logistics partner for Jamaicans.

The parish coronation show will take place on June 28, 2025, at the Ranny Williams Entertainment Centre in Kingston, beginning at 8:00 PM. This year's event is being held under the theme, "The Jamaican Woman: Proud and Bold," celebrating grace, purpose, and pride as contestants compete for the coveted crown. Shakespeare is among eleven (11) other contestants vying for the top position, where the winner will advance alongside other Parish Queens, who aspire to boast the national title of Miss Jamaica Festival Queen.

Jamaica Post proudly extends its best wishes to Miss Makaylia Shakespeare, hoping for a successful and rewarding experience on her journey to the crown.
