Jamaica Post and HEART NSTA Trust to Launch Staff Training Programme

Jamaica Post (Post and Telecommunications Department and the Postal Corporation of Jamaica) is pleased to advise team members that the organisation will host the launch of its Staff Training Programme on Tuesday, January 27, 2026, at 11:00 a.m. The event will be held at the Central Sorting Office, 6–10 South Camp Road, Kingston.

The Honourable Ambassador Audrey Marks, OJ, MP, Minister without Portfolio with Responsibility for Efficiency, Innovation and Digital Transformation, will deliver the keynote address.

As part of its continued focus on workforce development, Jamaica Post remains committed to equipping employees with relevant, recognised qualifications aimed at strengthening competencies, unlocking potential, and supporting long-term personal and professional advancement. In support of this objective, Jamaica Post has partnered with the HEART NSTA Trust to introduce a comprehensive training programme that will provide structured training and assessment for 300 employees across various disciplines.

This initiative represents a strategic investment in employees and reinforces the organisation's commitment to fostering a culture of continuous learning, performance improvement, and career growth. The programme is designed to meet industry standards while enhancing participants' skills, confidence and professional capabilities.

Through this partnership, Jamaica Post continues to advance its wider strategic objective of transforming its operations, service delivery, and organisational culture as staff development remains central to this transformation.

Jamaica Post remains committed to leveraging mutually beneficial partnerships in support of its modernization agenda and its goal of remaining Jamaica's preferred logistics and postal services provider.
